MANY MILLIONS OF CASH HUNT IS AT AN END.

Bankers Hold Sunday Morning Meeting at New York.

GREAT FUND IS PLEDGED.

Fifteen Men Who Gathered to Discuss the Mercantile National Bank Matter Inaugurate a Most Decided Advance in the Financial Line.

New York, Oct. 21.—A feeling of contentment and satisfaction prevails in banking circles after the history making Sunday morning meeting of bank presidents, which succeeded in finally eliminating the Heinze, Morse and Thomas interests in certain clearing house banks. It is generally believed that by this action the cloud that hung over the financial situation has been dispelled and a hopeful feeling will pervade the situation in the Stock Exchange and on the streets.

Besides choosing new officers for the banks in question and announcing each and every one in a solvent condition, the most important step taken was pledging a fund of $10,000,000 by individual banks to extend the aid to banks and render such assistance to meet deposits as the clearing house committee may think necessary.

The meeting Sunday was the most notable gathering of bankers of any occasion of recent years brought together. The deposits of the banks represented amounted to $1,250,000,000. The men, fifteen in all, and every one a practical banker, convened at the clearing house while the bells of old Trinity were ringing for the beginning of church services. These fifteen men decided upon measures for eliminating interests that had been under criticism, which measures later in the day were carried out. The methods that have now been eliminated from the local banking situation, it is stated, are development of the last decade. They consist of buying banks, then putting up stocks representing that control as collateral for funds to buy the control of another bank and continuing the process with banks and trust companies so as the result is a pyramid controlling the "chains of financial institutions and their deposits." The crisis it is declared, has been a serious one, but the cure extended is expected to be a complete cure.

STRONG AND HIGHER.

More Favorable View Was Taken of the Financial Situation.

New York, Oct. 21.—Encouraged by the protective measures adopted on Sunday by the clearing house banks speculators took a more favorable view of the financial situation Monday morning and the stock market opened strong and higher. Union Pacific sold at 115 advance—2 from Saturday's close. St. Paul, at 111½, rose ½ and Amalgamated Copper at 45½ an improvement of 1½.

The Mercantile National bank Monday owed the clearing house on balance $1,900,000. The National Bank of North America owed the clearing house $850,000 on balance.

HAS BABY GIRL.

On This Account Burglar Left Child's Savings.

New York, Oct. 21.—A burglar with sentiment is popularly supposed to be a rarity, but such a one is found here. He stole $800 in money and valuables from the home of Gustus T. Ruland, a sea captain, but refused to take the savings bank of Ruland's little daughter, Grace, about 18, or her jewelry trinkets. Instead of rifling the girl's bank, he left this note on it:

"I have a sweet little girl of my own. I hate to be in this business, but I am compelled to. My regards to the baby."

BURGLAR KILLED.

Two Brothers Had a Desperate Encounter With an Interloper.

Nashville, Oct. 21.—E. J. Schott, a well known druggist here, and Charles Schott, his brother, had a desperate encounter Monday morning about 2 o'clock with a negro burglar armed with a hatchet. The burglar was killed and both brothers injured in the encounter. Mr. Schott used a Winchester rifle, firing three bullets into the body of the burglar, who fought until dead. Charles Schott was struck on the head twice with the hatchet and seriously hurt. E. J. Schott was struck several times.

GENERAL BOOTH ILL.

Head of the Salvation Army Is Sick In Bed at Chicago.

Chicago, Oct. 21.—General Booth of the Salvation Army is ill here. A consultation of several physicians was held and Dr. Williams announced that unless unexpected complications may arise Mr. Booth would be able to continue his trip in about a week. On account of his advanced age precautions are being taken to prevent the cold from which he is suffering from turning into pneumonia.

The general remained in bed all day Sunday at the home of G. A. Kilbrey, commander of the Chicago branch of the army.

President Says He Had a Most Enjoyable Time.

THREE BEARS ARE SLAIN.

Six Deer, One Wild Turkey, Twelve Squirrels, One Duck, One Possum and One Wildcat Secured, and All but Cat Eaten.

Stamboul, La., Oct. 21.—"We got three bears, six deer, one wild turkey, twelve squirrels, one duck, one possum and one wild cat. We ate them all except the wild cat, and there were times when we almost felt we could eat it."

This was President Roosevelt's summing up of the results of his hunt of Bayou Tensas and Bear lake. He arrived at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon, approaching the residence of Leo Shields. He came in on a full gallop, and accompanied, as he was, by about a dozen of his hunting companions, all mounted and all attired in hunting garb. The cavalcade presented a tableau as picturesque as it was animated.

"Yes, we got three bears," the president said, "all that we saw, and I think a pretty good record. I am perfectly satisfied."

"You might add," interjected one of the Metcalf brothers, who has been the president's principal guide throughout the hunt, "that we hunted a country of vast extent, and in which there were but five bear all told, and that of these we got three."

"Was the 'possum good?" he was asked.

"Absolutely the best dish we had except the bear liver," he responded with relish.

As he talked he stood under a wide-spreading live oak in the big ten-acre grass plot, which constitutes the front yard of the model plantation home in which Mr. Shields resides. Around him were gathered Mr. Shields and a number of guests whom he had invited to dine with the president. They consisted of the members of the president's Washington party who had remained here and those who came in with him from the lake, including Messrs. McIlhenny, Lambert Richey, the Osborne brothers and the Metcalf brothers. In the distance were gathered the negro hunters, Holt Collier, Alex. Argold, Brutus Jackson and numerous cooks, teamsters and messengers, while the horses stood grazing in the yard and the dogs lay around licking their lacerated bodies, many of the animals being in bad condition on account of the long chase, and others as result of contact with wild hogs, wild cats and other wild things. The president was the central figure of the group, and he never appeared in happier frame of mind than on this occasion. He declared that his health had been perfect and his appetite equally good; said that with the exception of a day or so lost on account of rain, had been in the saddle every day from daylight till dark, and ended declaring that never in his life had he finer sport. The arrival of the party brought out the fact that a third bear had been killed on Friday, a two-year-old, which had been slain by one of the Osborne brothers when it was in a fierce fight with the dogs.

The hunters say the president killed the bear Thursday in sportsmanlike style. The animal had been chased by the dogs three hours, the president following the time when at last they came within hearing distance the president dismounted from his horse, dashed off his coat, tore into the cane-brake, coming to within twenty paces of the beast. The dogs were coming up rapidly, with the president's favorite "Rowdy" in the lead, and the brute had stopped to bid defiance to them when the president sent a bullet from his Winchester hurling through the thicket after it. The shot went through the animal's lights, and would have been fatal, but with the little life left in it, the bear turned upon the dogs. The president lodged a second bullet between the shoulders and broke the creature's neck. Other members of the party were not long in coming up, and president was so rejoiced over his good fortune that he almost embraced each of his companions. They were equally happy, and in the exuberance of the moment Arnold went to the extent of telling the president that he, the president, was "no tenderfoot." The president responded by presenting him a $20 note.

Saturday there was comparatively little hunting because of the condition of the dogs, some of which encountered a dove of wild hogs, which are more ferocious than bear. One of the best dogs of the Osborne pack was killed outright by a big boar.

There were daily swims in the lake by several of the members of the party and by the president himself after his example of last Monday. "The water was fine," he said, "and I did not have the fear of alligators that some seem to have."

In honor of the president, the name of this place has been changed to Roosevelt.

Hissed and Jeered.

Chicago, Oct. 21.—Sylvester J. Small, former president of the Commercial Telegraphers' union, was hissed and jeered by 600 members of the Chicago local union, before whom he appeared Sunday afternoon in an effort to justify his action in seeking to end the strike. Nearly a third of those present left the hall after shouting insults at

CAPT. HOBSON'S LECTURE.

Takes Strong Ground for a Large Navy as Necessary to the Peace of the World.

Capt. Richmond Pearson Hobson, the hero of Santiago, congressman from Alabama, and the exponent of the larger navy idea, spent Sunday in the city and lectured at the opera house in the afternoon under the auspices of the Bryan Lodge of Elks. There was a fine audience present, notwithstanding the rain and mud, and Captain Hobson was given undivided attention for nearly two hours. He was introduced by President Harrington of the A. and M. College, who referred to the speaker's ability as a writer and lecturer and to his unusual career as a naval officer which has placed him in the front rank of famous Americans.

Capt. Hobson took for his subject "Character Building and Patriotism." He is an earnest, fluent and forcible speaker, and one of those who, by his record and his word, believes in doing things. Capt. Hobson began by referring to the number of students present, and admonished them to make the most of their opportunities for the reason that while only four per cent of the young men of this country have the opportunity to secure a college education, they constitute by a vast majority the leaders in our national progress.

Capt. Hobson referred to the battle of Santiago, and briefly to his experiences on the Merrimac and subsequently as a prisoner of the Spaniards, and described the harrowing scenes following the wonderful naval battle. He said the Spaniards were not lacking in brave men or in good ships, but they were lacking in that alertness and thoughtful preparation by which the Americans had the battle won before the first gun was fired.

The speaker then enlarged upon this idea of thorough preparation for all the affairs and duties of life, with the best possible development of the physique, the intellect and the spirit, carefully seeking out the weak places and fortifying and strengthening them by unremitting effort. In this country, he declared, men rise and fall and seek their level according to the law of specific gravity—according to what is in them.

Captain Hobson then launched into a brilliant discussion of world wide patriotism, and declared it to be the duty of every man to accomplish the maximum of good for mankind. He conceived it to be the duty of our country, occupying a strategic central position between Europe and the east, and having insular possessions affording still further opportunity for accomplishing the purpose, to take the lead among the nations in preserving the peace of the world until such a time as the progress of civilization shall have made wars and their causes unknown. To this end, and for the protection of our own interests and our commerce, he advocates a navy three times as great as we have at present, which will be adequate to police the seas in such force as to overawe nations that might otherwise seek conquest. He regards the yellow peril as imminent unless the United States holds the situation in check by diplomacy until her naval power is sufficient to rule the Pacific, and have completed the Panama canal.

While many doubtless regarded Capt. Hobson in the light of an alarmist, the sentiment of his audience was manifestly with him for such substantial additions to our naval power as will make it adequate for the protection of American interests at home and abroad. This sentiment was evidenced by the endorsement of a resolution proposed by Capt. Hobson, providing for a larger navy and for international action looking to the settlement of differences and the perpetuation of peace.

WAS A BATTLE ROYAL.

A. and M. Defeated Louisiana at College Yesterday in a Hard Fought Contest.

A large crowd from the College and Bryan witnessed a battle royal in the football game on the College grounds yesterday afternoon between the A. and M. and Louisiana State University of Baton Rouge. At the close of the game the score stood 11 to 5 in favor of the A. and M. The visitors made the touchdown which saved them from being shut out within the last five minutes of play, or nearly dark. They missed goal and the A. and M. also missed one goal. There were no sensational runs, and both teams resorted to kicking. The forward pass was employed by both with about equal success. Parnell of the A. and M. team had a small bone in one of his ankles broken.

The Bryan patrons of the College games would be glad to have them called earlier in order to finish before dark and give them an opportunity to get home more conveniently.

The A. and M. will play the Haskell Indians at College next Monday afternoon, and another hard contest will be witnessed.

BANQUET TO GOVERNOR.

Former and Senator Bailey Are Only Speakers.

Dallas, Oct. 21.—Three hundred persons participated in the banquet tendered Governor Campbell at the Oriental hotel Saturday night. The banquet commenced at 11 o'clock and ended at 12:12 Sunday. Congressman Beall was toastmaster. Senator Culberson, who was to have spoken, declined to do so, as it was then the Sabbath, and he stated he never made a speech on that day. The subject assigned to the senior senator was "The Paramount Issue of 1900 and Its Vindication." He expressed gratification that a banquet had been tendered the governor.

Governor Campbell, in responding to the first toast, "Democratic Platform and the Thirtieth Legislature," defended the acts of that body. He also took notice of the open letter of H. Clay Pierce, and declared he would have no communication with the latter as long as he "was a fugitive from justice," and reiterated his utterances concerning Pierce and the Waters-Pierce Oil company.

Before responding to the toast, "The Paramount Issue of 1896 and the Its Vindication," Senator Bailey, who followed the governor, declared that he approved of the governor's purpose to run trusts out of Texas, but would inform him that the Standard Oil company was doing business in the state without molestation, and if the executive would order Attorney General Davidson to bring suit against that corporation he (Bailey) would furnish the proof. Great cheering followed these remarks.

He argued that the effect of the increased supply of gold during the past decade had vindicated the quantitative theory of money. In time, however, the conditions would make it necessary to coin silver on a parity with gold, and further vindicate the paramount issue of 1896.

"Give the people less taxes to pay and more money to pay them with," was the closing sentence.

Attorney General Davidson, when questioned about Senator Bailey's speech, said he already had one suit pending against a branch of the Standard Oil company (the Waters-Pierce Oil company); that Kellogg in New York had recently developed proof that another branch of the Standard Oil company was doing business in Texas, and that he (Davidson) was already preparing to bring suit against that company.

AMERICANS ARRESTED.

W. E. Walling, Wife and Sister of Latter In Prison.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 21.—William English Walling of Indianapolis, Ind., his wife and his sister-in-law, Miss Rose Transky, were arrested in this city Sunday by a force of gendarmes because of their association with several members of the Finnish Progression party. A representative of the American embassy appeared at the headquarters in their behalf. The three Americans were separated. Mr. Walling was sent to the detention prison, his wife to the woman's prison, and Miss Stransky, who is apparently regarded as the most important captive, to the new jail built for the famous third section, or the secret police. It was impossible to learn what the charge was against the Finns. This will determine the accusation against Mr. Walling, but a member of the gendarmes who made the arrest said the order of arrest had originated in his section, and that the secret service had been shadowing Mr. Walling constantly for two years past.

The police have been instructed to look also for James M. James, a New York newspaper man, who has been over here for nearly a year in the interest of Socialistic papers.

Kellogg Durland, another American and a friend of Mr. Walling, who has been in St. Petersburg gathering material for a series of lectures, also was taken into custody, but later was released.

Mr. Walling is a wealthy Socialist. He is also a settlement worker.

The Finns with whom the Wallings have been associated were also arrested. In this party there were three men and one woman. The woman is the wife of Professor Mallenborg of Helsingford university. The Finns have been in St. Petersburg several days. They have been under close police observation all the time.

It was later stated Mr. Walling was accused of furnishing financial aid to the revolutionists, but he was not arrested on that charge.

Mr. Walling inherited a fortune from his grandfather, the late W. H. English, of Indianapolis, Hancock's running mate on the Democratic presidential ticket of 1880.

PAINFUL SENSATION.

Last Resting Place of President Kruger Has Been Desecrated.

Johannesburg, Oct. 21.—A painful sensation has been caused by the discovery that the grave of the late President Kruger in the cemetery at Pretoria, has been desecrated. The marble bust of the ex-president has been torn from its base and badly crippled. Other graves in the vicinity, including that of Kruger's grandchild, were also slightly damaged. The desecration is believed to be the work of thieves, who expected that a reward would be offered for the bust, but which they found too heavy to carry off.

He Had not Ridden a Horse For Thirty-Nine Years.

San Francisco, Oct. 21.—Rather than undergo the riding test prescribed in the recent order of the war department Colonel Charles H. Heinzmann, assistant surgeon general of the army, has filed his application to go before the retiring board. He says he is a medical man and has not been on a horse for thirty-nine years.

IS BEING "RESTORED"

NEEDED REPAIRS BEING MADE IN STATUARY HALL.

This Justly Famous Feature of the National Capitol Building Now
Undergoing Thorough Rejuvenation.

A very important project which is now engaging the attention of Uncle Sam's architects and builders involves the "restoration" of famous statuary hall at the United States capitol at Washington. That any undertaking having to do with this significant chamber should prove of concern to a large portion of the public is but natural, since nearly every visitor to the nation's legislative headquarters at Washington pronounces this improvised gallery of art the most interesting and most beautiful portion of the great white-domed building. But, aside from its architectural attractions, statuary hall is notable for its historic associations.

In the old days, when what is now the national statuary hall was the meeting place of the United States house of representatives and resounded to the oratory of Webster, Clay, Adams, Calhoun and other giants of the republic, it was generally conceded to be the most beautiful legislative hall in the world. As time went on, however, and repairs became necessary, motives of economy or misguided judgment, caused some "improvements" to be made that did not justify the name. To undo some of this work is the object of the present task for which congress at its last session provided funds.

Accordingly, for weeks past the marble figures in statuary hall have been boxed up and the big apartment has been filled with scaffolding, while dozens of workmen have been busily engaged in restoring this part of the capitol to the state, even as to details, originally intended. Incidentally it may be remarked that there is to be a corresponding removal of the obnoxious paint from the crypt under the great dome, which was designed to be the tomb of George Washington, but was never used for that purpose. Here also are stately pillars—a colonnade of Doric columns with grained ceiling, which will take on a new dignity when relieved of the disfiguring coats of paint applied during a long succession of years.

But the restoration of the meeting place of the house of representatives during a most important period of the nation's history will not end with the restoration of the pristine glory of the semicircular walls. Two of the old stairways which led from the legislative hall to what was formerly the men's gallery and the women's gallery have been rediscovered and opened, and the men's gallery will be restored to the original condition which characterized it when more than half a century ago it was daily crowded with visitors who gathered to hear the most memorable debates of the anti-slavery crisis and other exciting periods. The steps of this old stairway are of solid blocks of sandstone and of rather quaint design, and in each step, a little to the left of the middle, a distinct depression has been made by the trod of the countless visitors who passed up and down in the olden times.

Probably the most interesting statue in the entire collection in statuary hall is the replica of Houdon's statue of George Washington, the original being in the capitol at Richmond. Sculptor Houdon was permitted to make casts and measurements of Washington's person, and consequently his sculptured figure depicts the father of his country exactly as he was in real life. Great interest also attaches to the only statue of a woman in this national gallery of celebrities—namely the marble representation of Frances E. Willard, presented a few years since by the state of Illinois.

KNOWS BETTER NOW.

Patrolman Tries to Bar Mail Wagon from Boulevard But Doesn't.

It was dark, and the mounted officer who guarded the Capitol avenue boulevard heard the leisurely hoof-beats of a horse that toils, a horse to whom the chief end of life is not how fast he can make the westrumite reel beneath him, but how the hours will pass until he can once more munch oats in the peace and quiet of his stall. "That's no 'bon ton' rig. Here's a fellow has slipped up on me in the dark to use our beautiful speedway for plebeian purposes," thought the patrolman, alert in his intention to "call" the fellow for the indignity. The plodding animal with the workaday vehicle drew near, and the patrolman stepped out in front of it.

"Stop!" he said. The driver stuck his head out the side and spat nonchalantly. "What's up?" he queried. "You'll have to get off the street," said the copper.

"Not just yet. I've got another corner to make first. Meantime, unless you want to be arrested for interfering with collection of the United States mails, get out of the way."

The policeman would have argued the matter, but Collector Clem Abrams had been in the service of Uncle Sam long enough not to allow his duties to be interfered with, so the patrolman was left to think it over.

WIVES OF EX-PRESIDENTS.

Four Have Outlived Their Distinguished Husbands.

That the wives of presidents stand nerve-strain and countless annoyances of White House life better than do their husbands seems to be exemplified by the fact that while there is only one living president there are four living women who have occupied the executive mansion. These are Mrs. James A. Garfield, Mrs. Benjamin Harrison, Mrs. Grover Cleveland and Mrs. William McKinley. Mrs. Garfield, who presided over the White House only a few months, and whose son is now a member of the cabinet, spends most of the time in her magnificent home at Pasadena, Cal., a suburb of Los Angeles. Mrs. Harrison, the second wife of Indiana's great statesman, was considerably younger than her distinguished husband, and now occupies the old Harrison homestead in Indianapolis. Mrs. McKinley lives in the modest home at Canton provided for her by her devoted husband while he was still living on the salary of a congressman. Her health is no worse and no better than it was when the light was snuffed out of her life by the tragedy at Buffalo. She visits the tomb of Mr. McKinley every day and places upon it flowers moistened by her tears. Mrs. Cleveland, than whom no "first lady of the land" was ever more popular in Washington, lives in dignified comfort at Princeton with her husband and devotes herself to the attention of her children. The three presidential widows draw comfortable pensions from the government.—Washington Herald.

A Close Corporation.

"I always knew," remarked an F street merchant the other day, "that the adjutant general's office was a close corporation, but it seems to be closer than I realized. It was only the other day that I had a practical demonstration of the rigid discipline that prevails in that office. I had occasion to send a purely innocent message to the chief of one of the divisions of the office on a matter of some importance to him. By consulting the directory, I found that he had a telephone in his office, so I called up the war department exchange and asked to be put in communication with him. What was my surprise when I was informed that I would have to give my message to the chief clerk of the office, and if he thought proper it would be conveyed to its destination. As I didn't care to ask any favors of the chief clerk, who is a stranger to me, I concluded that I would choose some other means of communication. Since then I have learned that no one but the adjutant general himself is permitted to use the telephones in the adjutant general's office for any business outside the office without the permission of the chief clerk, who submits all messages in doubt to the decision of the adjutant general. Not only that, but the officials and employees are prohibited from seeing visitors or leaving the building during office hours without first receiving permission from the adjutant general or his chief clerk."

Fishermen Statesmen.

Quite a number of officials find their recreation along the banks of more or less turbulent streams, in quest of finny prey. Senator Foraker and Senator Proctor are the most prominent senatorial fishermen. The Ohioan frequently steals away from his duties at the capitol for a day's sport with the bass along the upper Potomac. A. C. Conrad, chief clerk of the fourth assistant postmaster general's office, is one who has listened to the call of the wild. He is an angler for big game. Maj. Sylvester, chief of police of Washington, and president of the National Police association, is an ardent fisherman with more than a local reputation.

Fires' Curious Origin.

There is a curious origin of a recent fire in a Manchester, N. H., telephone office. The sun streaming through the window fell upon the heavy glass paperweight, which slowly absorbed the heat until it grew so hot that it began to radiate it, and the messages underneath caught fire

New Models in Costumes, of Coat and Skirt Order

The new models in street and other outdoor costumes of the coat and skirt order are especially attractive, and among the newest ones some distinct novelties are shown. The coat of both the cloth and linen suits is generally of the plain tailored order, although for dress occasions some charming trimmed suits are shown.

A new skirt which has been brought out recently by several leading tailors is the side or box-plaited model, with crosswise tucks running around the lower part. One especially favored style shows three crosswise tucks, each two inches in width, the lower tuck being about four inches from the bottom, the second about six inches above, with the same distance between it and the third tuck. This style is varied by having small tucks in groups at the head of each large tuck, the model being especially good in thin wool and voile materials.

Most of the linen and cloth coats are made plain and semifitting and are cut from six to 12 inches below the waist-line.

The first design shown in the cut illustrates such a suit, this model being in brown and white check linen. The fronts of the coat were cut on the bias and the center gore of the wide circular skirt was also cut bias.

The second figure shows a more elaborate suit. This model was in voile over silk, but the same design is practical for linen materials. Braid was used for the ornaments down the front, and inset pieces, braided, were set into the coat and skirt, as pictured.

STYLES FOR THE HAIR

High Dressing Still the Favorite Vogue—Tortoiseshell Pins and Combs Used Very Frequently.

A high dressing is still accounted the essence of smartness, and the favorite disposal of the moment takes the form of curls and loosely disposed coils with soft tendrils about the forehead, while a parting is usually indicated, a little to the left side of front. Large ondules are the order of the day, and the pompadour is allowed to droop considerably over the brow, while the back is taken up with a sharp sweep, and the sides rolled back in graceful and becoming fashion.

The ingenue is faithful to her low dressing, but in lieu of that atrocious all-round pompadour, held in subjection by three combs, the hair is parted in the center, or a little to the left, and puffed out and rolled back at the sides, when a pair of fancy combs come into prominent requisition. The remainder of the hair is then twisted into a figure-of-eight coil low down in the nape of the neck, the inevitable fine hair net keeping all in order, aided by two large, round-headed pins; or some girls dispense with these, and elect to don a large black silk bow placed at the top of the coil.

Tortoiseshell pins and combs form invaluable adjuncts to the modern coiffure. In fact, it is quite unusual to see a head unadorned with these useful and ornamental details. Frequently for evening wear, these are augmented by sprays of sequin leaves, birds and wings, while flowers and maidenhair fern are still permitted a place, though tinsel fancies strike the more advanced note.

A Little Hat Hint.

The hats being worn at present are simply chefs d'oeuvre. Independence, imagination, and art reign supreme, both in the choice of colors and the evocation of styles. What a lot of exquisite models! The hat to-day has a little conquering air. But what plays a very important role, though a very discreet one is the barrette. It has the appearance of being of no importance, this little hat of velvet or tulle, lined with buckram. Well, it is often on this simple accessory that the whole chic of a hat depends. The barrette is the base, on which the hat is placed; on it depends, in a great degree, whether it will look well or not.

To Keep Dresses Fresh.

One of the nicest ways of keeping dresses, especially evening ones, fresh is to sew throughout the lining tiny perfumed silk sachets. Any odd bit of silk does for this purpose. Make the sachet about one inch square. Put in a layer of soft white wadding, into which has been sprinkled some sachet powder. Sew up and tack firmly to various places in skirt and bodice. This gives the delicate elusive fragrance to your frock which is rather hard to attain when liquid perfume is used. It also has the additional benefit of keeping away destructive moths when the garment is laid aside for a time.

CHOOSING THE HAT

Rules Women Should Observe When Buying Their Headgear—Individual Characteristics to Study.

If a woman has a thin face and is inclined to be sharp featured let her beware of hats that go up off her face.

This kind of hat only tends to out line her defects and she should choose a hat that is brought well forward.

Her hair, too, should be arranged and never drawn back in a plain fashion. Sharp or smart hats should be almost avoided and fancy edges adopted.

If one has features that look good at a casual glance but will not bear inspection a hat crushed in and pulled out with many corners and angles will be her most becoming design.

This tends to mystify and one finds herself unwilling to investigate—the effect is too good to unbalance.

A small face should deal warily with the picture hat. It is very liable to have its saving graces drowned in the depths of the enormity and should never be attempted by anyone who has not the height sufficient to carry.

A well-formed face can show off most any model and it is with this sort of face in view that most designs are created.

OF DOTTED FOULARD.

Pretty blouse of blue foulard with white spots. It is shirred at the top and bottom and over the shoulders are ruffles of the material, headed by tiny ruffles of plain silk to match, which are fastened to the blouse.

The collar and cuffs are of guipure, edged with the plain silk and finished at the points with tassels. The knot and girdle are also of plain taffeta.

Frock Trimmings.

Tulle combined with lace is popular for the yoke and sleeves of the silk voile gown. Liberty satin also trims these frocks; a favorite method is to have a broad band of it around the bottom of the skirt.

ODDMUSEUMFREAKS

RARE ANTIQUITIES TO BE SEEN IN KANSAS CITY.

Bones of an Unnamed Beast That Was 400 Feet Long—An Interesting Old Clock.

In the Kansas City museum are the skull bones of an unknown beast that was 400 feet long and 60 or 80 feet high. The skull in the museum weighs 440 pounds, is seven and a half feet in diameter, and from the tip of the nasal bone to the top of the head the distance is 12 feet. The eye sockets are four feet across. The brain cavity will hold half a bushel. A portion of a rib of this animal found near the skull is 14 feet long. From this a section seven feet long had been broken. Perhaps the rib was even longer when it was intact.

"Naturalists have been unable to name this animal," an attendant at the museum said. "They say that, judging from proportions, it must have been 350 or 400 feet long and 60 or 80 feet high. Think of an animal more than a block long and as high as some four-story business buildings. The skull of this beast was found on Little Bear creek in the Cherokee strip in September, 1893. R. H. Phelps of Wichita, Kan., found a part of the rib protruding from a sandbar. An excavation was made and the remainder of the animal was exhumed."

In another section of the museum are several teeth from the head of a mammoth. These bits of bone are a foot tall and about two feet wide. One of them will weigh more than 50 pounds. They were found in Oklahoma.

And then there are "samples" of another animal, a smaller one. These are bones of a mastodon, a beast which in prehistoric days grew into enormous size. Some of the bones of its body are nine inches in diameter. One of its teeth is as large as the crown of a man's hat. These bones were found in an excavation at Second street and Lydia avenue June 27, 1900.

But the bones of animals are only one of the fascinating displays at the museum. There are oriental collections, Egyptian relics, Indian pieces. There are birds, beasts, insects, fossils—curios in endless numbers. It would take a person a week to examine the Indian curios alone. The arrow-heads, tomahawks, pipes, beadwork moccasins, are there in hundred lots. One little beaded belt, made by a Crow Indian woman, is said to be the finest piece of work ever seen in the west. The belt is about two inches wide, the body of buckskin. It is covered with thousands of colored beads, worked in so that they show a series of American Beauty roses.

There are arrow heads in the museum, collected all the way from New York to San Francisco. There is one large display of them, gathered in and around Kansas City. They were made many years ago by the Wyandotte, Shawnee and Creek tribes. Some old mortars and pestles, used by the Indians around this section of the west, for preparing food, are also on display in the museum. They seem so odd and crude.

"One old relic of which we are very proud," said the custodian of the museum, "is this old Seth Thomas clock, made in Plymouth. It is one of the old 'grandfather's' variety, a clock made entirely of wood. Its cogwheels are of wood, its regulator of wood. With the exception of the hands and a few wires used as pins there is no steel or iron in it. There are few of these clocks in existence."

One of the rarest collections in the museum is the property of Mrs. Clark Salmon, obtained from the orient. Carved ivory and mahogany images, trinkets in endless variety are in it. One rosary in the collection was blessed by Pope Leo XIII.

Queer Wedding Invitations.

Invitations to weddings in Wales are very businesslike. When the parents of the bride-to-be bid her friends to the ceremony, they bid them not to come empty handed. The cards say:

"Whatever donations you may be pleased to bestow will be thankfully repaid whenever called for on a similar occasion. The parents of the bride and bridegroom-elect desire that all gifts due to them will be returned to them on the above date and will be thankful for all favors granted."

AN EXAMPLE TO OTHERS.

The rude carving on the headstone shown here represents a young lady who died from the effects of tight lacing, and she appears to be in evident discomfort from the evils of the practice. Beneath this figure is a smaller one showing a man on horseback, riding, it is supposed, to fetch the doctor. This extremely quaint memorial is to be seen in the ancient churchyard of Springkell, near Ecclefechan.

DOG BRINGS UP KITTENS.

The Foster Mother Satisfied, Though Sometimes Surprised.

Down in Delaware City, Del., a young mother dog, when she turned to lick her four new born puppies, found they did not respond to her tender care. They had come into the world lifeless.

They were her firstborn and she was puzzled and grieved that they paid no attention to the soft caresses with which she strove to woo them to her. She finally ceased in despair, and looking about her spied a mother pussy, to whom a pair of healthy kittens had just arrived.

Jealous and indignant she flew to the happy mother and seized and shook her till the cat fled in terror and did not return. Then the dog, taking the kittens tenderly in her mouth, carried them to her box and adopted them as her own. There were only two babies in place of her four, but not being able to count she did not notice the lack.

The kittens accepted the situation, thrived and waxed fat. But since they are older and have become playful their conduct sometimes astonishes their foster mother.

For instance, when they chase each other up a tree she looks after them with amazement and solicitude, apparently reflecting that she never behaved that way when she was a puppy, and as soon as they alight on the ground again she seizes them in her mouth and carries them reprovingly back to their box. There are probably other surprises in store for her when she finds that their language, instead of being a bark, is a spit or a mew, but in the meantime she is happy and self-satisfied.—Country Life in America.

RAINMAKING DEVICE.

A Ussukuma chief has invented this original apparatus for making rain. At the entrance to his village a flat stone has been hollowed out, and in the cavity two stone balls are placed. Behind the stone two pots are buried in the ground. The magician collects sacred herbs, places them in the hollow of the stone, beats them with the stone balls, then transfers the beaten mass to the two pots. The Ussukuma chief claims this process never has failed to attract rain.

TWO STRANGE TREES.

The Mojava Yucca a Vegetable Freak—The Creeping Oak of Monterey.

California has one tree which is the personification of mystery. Found nowhere else in the world, it has a mysterious origin and thrives in a region of mystery.

The Mojava yucca is a vegetable freak which has developed into a species. It has the characteristics of several plants, to which no relationship can be traced.

It is an endogen, yet its bark shows concentric rings such as characterize the exogenous stems. It lives and thrives in great numbers in a region early devoid of vegetation, in a land of heat and thirst and barrenness.

Another tree in California which has a peculiar personality is the creeping oak of Monterey.

Nowhere in the vegetable kingdom can be found so true a representative of monopoly. The tree is of gnarly growth, its limbs, like those of the sycamore, bending and twisting in all directions.

Wherever a branch touches the earth it takes root and becomes, as it were, another trunk, though still a branch of the main stem, drawing nourishment both from the parent stem and from the new source. In this manner the tree is spread till it has taken possession of five acres of ground and it is still advancing.

NEW COLLEGE BUILDINGS.

Contract to be let October 28 for Dormitory, Bath House and Veterinary Hospital—Need for More Room Will Continue.

The accepted architect's plans for the three buildings to be erected at the A. and M. College have been received by President Harrington from Architect White of Fort Worth, Texas. The contract for the erection of these buildings will be let on October 28, at which time the building committee of the board of directors will meet to consider the different bids.

NEW DORMITORY.

The principal building is a brick dormitory for men, which is to be built just across the street and due north from the chaplain's cottage. The building will contain three stories and the basement. It is to be built entirely of brick and is to have slate roof. The first floor of the building will contain twenty rooms and the second and third floors twenty-one rooms each. This, with two boys in a room, will provide accommodations for 122 boys. Should the basement also be utilized for rooming purposes, forty more boys can be comfortably lodged in this dormitory.

The building is to be called Goodwin Hall. It was by legislative act after a member of Fourteenth legislature, the Hon. Mr. Goodwin, who lives now near Goldthwaite, Texas. Mr. Goodwin was the first man who obtained from the legislature a large appropriation for the Agricultural and Mechanical College.

Goodwin Hall will not only be the most comfortable dormitory on the campus, but it will likely also be the handsomest of the large buildings. The main entrance to the building will be particularly graceful. Broad steps lead up to the main entrance and on either side Greek columns will give the effect somewhat of a large country home. Unusual care has been taken in the specifications to provide for adequate foundations. Should the appropriation be sufficient, the building will be heated with hot water. It will be ready for occupancy by the beginning of the next session. Its capacity, however, will scarcely be sufficient for the young men at the college who are already living in tents. Unless further relief is quickly offered, it is likely the A. and M. students will continue to live in tents for a year or so.

NEW BATHHOUSE.

The second building to be erected at the college is a large bathhouse. The dimensions of the bathhouse proper are 41 by 68 feet. Immediately in front of the building are offices for janitors, spacious waiting rooms and several toilet rooms. The bathhouse will contain thirty-two shower baths provided with hot and cold water and forty-seven dressing rooms. The cold water will come to the baths under standpipe pressure and the hot water will be heated with live steam from the boiler house. The floor will be of cement and the walls to a distance of eight feet high will be made of brick. Glazed brick will probably be used under the showers and to face the inside of the brick walls. The building is lighted by a large skylight, and the high windows are arranged to prevent drafts through the building.

VETERINARY HOSPITAL.

After many years of patient waiting, Dr. Mark Francis of the department of veterinary science is to have a well equipped veterinary hospital. The building will be 136 feet in length by 36 in width.

The central portion of the building, which is to be used for chemical purposes, will be thirty-six feet square. This portion of the building is to be two stories in height. Each of the two wings will be 50 by 24 feet. Here will be located stalls for the animals to be treated.

All of these buildings have been urgently needed for years at the Agricultural and Mechanical College. The fact that they are secured now is due to the strong friends of the college in the last legislature and to the persistent appeals of President Harrington. The increased accommodations which they will offer will mean much to the advancement of the best interests of the institution.

Verdict for "The Clansman."

That intensely interesting drama of the Reconstruction period, "The Clansman," will play at the Grand Opera House on Thursday Oct. 24. Viewed as a stage product simply, "The Clansman" is one of the most powerful dramas ever put on the American boards. Such scenes as the High Court of the Klu Klux Klan, and the parting of the lovers, Ben and Elsie, would alone be sufficient to make the fortune of any play. The power of the play as a play is proven by the enthusiasm with which the play is received both South and North. Popular support, not critical opinion, is what makes and mars plays, and the tremendous business done by "The Clansman" in every section of the country shows the people's verdict.

ANALYZING METHODS.

Dr. Fraps Returned from Conference of Chemists at Jamestown.

Dr. G. S. Fraps, State chemist and also chemist to the experiment station, returned during the past week from attending the meeting of official Agricultural Chemists, held at Jamestown Exposition, Norfolk, Va. Dr. Fraps reports that nearly every state east of the Mississippi was represented at this meeting. The object of the association is to study methods of analyzing food, fertilizers, feeding stuffs, and other agricultural products, and to adopt accurate methods of analyses. Methods so adopted are the legal methods of many states in the union. The Texas feedstuffs law, for instance, prescribes that the analysis shall be made according to the method adopted by the Association of Official Agricultural Chemists. During recent years a number of new methods have been adopted for the detection of adulterations in food. Improvements in methods are being introduced from time to time.

Dr. Fraps reports that the Jamestown Exposition is much more attractive than he expected. The scenic effects, particularly the lighting, are excellent. The attendance, however, is still small.

PLANT ODDITIES.

Flowers That Possess Eyes, Though They May Not See.

The night hath a thousand eyes, but a nasturtium leaf has more. Holding up his hand in front of a desert shrub, an experimenter has taken a microphotograph showing half a dozen distinct images of his fingers formed by the eyes of the plant. Many common garden and wild flowers—the nasturtium, begonia, clover, wood sorrel and bluebell among others—possess eyes situated on their leaves. They are minute protuberances filled with a transparent gummy matter which focuses the rays of light on to a sensitive patch of tissue at the back of it in a similar manner to that in which the eyes of an animal do their work. A common nasturtium plant has thousands of such eyelets on its leaves, forming thousands of minute images of the objects around them. But, though a plant may have eyes, it does not follow that it sees. It is not yet known if the sense impressions are telegraphed to some central nerve exchange corresponding to the brain of the animal. In addition to these light sense organs many plants possess a touch of sensitiveness and a response to electric stimuli that show further resemblance to the animal world, while ferns, mosses and seaweeds in an early stage of their existence are capable of actually swimming through water.—Chicago Tribune

TEACHERS' CLANSMAN CONTEST.

The voting contest for the six reserved seats for the performance of "The Clansman," to be given to the lady school teacher receiving the largest number of votes, has opened in a most gratifying manner.

The scholars are already beginning to take a lively interest in the contest. Everybody, young or old, rich or poor, is entitled to one or one thousand votes, the only provision being that the voting shall be done on the voting coupons printed daily in this newspaper. There are several hundred school children and supporters of the public schools in this city.

PRIZE CONTEST--VOTING COUPON

I cast my vote for in the Teachers' Contest for the performance of "The Clansman" on Thursday, October 24 at the Grand Opera House.

every one of whom should cast at least one vote for the teacher of their choice.

The plan of the contest is very simple. The Eagle will afford the opportunity to one teacher and her friends to witness that great play of the South, "The Clansman," at the opera house on Oct. 24. We have accordingly secured six reserved seats for this performance, and will present them with our compliments to the teacher receiving the largest number of votes.

The successful teacher will be the owner of the seats for the evening and may invite any of her friends whom she desires to share them with her.

Few men have received such an ovation in this city as that accorded to Captain Richmond Pearson Hobson, "the Hero of the Merrimac," and now a Congressman from Alabama, Sunday afternoon, when he was presented to 4,143 men, who greeted him with cheers and hand claps and waving flags and handkerchiefs.—Ex. 269

Dr. Geo. B. Butler, Rev. J. M. Bullock, Rev. G. A. Foster, A. W. Buchanan and Miss Townsend of this city will leave Thursday night for Franklin to attend the meeting of the Central Texas Baptist Association beginning Thursday night. Dr. Butler will preach the missionary sermon Friday night.

Will Barnett, colored, brought to the Eagle office a few days since a remarkable sweet potato, grown at his home in this city, and weighing 5 1-4 pounds. A strange feature of the potato is that it shows the profile of human faces very distinctly, and also of a camel's nose. The profiles shown are those of an old lady and of an Irishman.

W. L. Zulch of Zulch was in the city yesterday, having just returned from Galveston, where he was called on account of a second operation for appendicitis, performed Sunday morning by Dr. Thompson on Frank Webb of this city. Mr. Zulch states that Frank stood the operation splendidly, being stronger than on the first occasion, and that he is getting along well.

Rheumatism

I have found a tried and tested cure for Rheumatism! Not a remedy that will straighten the distorted limbs of chronic cripples, nor turn bony growths back to flesh again. That is impossible. But I can now surely kill the pains and pangs of this deplorable disease. In Germany with a Chemist in the City of Darmstadt—I found the last ingredient with which Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy was made a perfected, dependable prescription. Without that last ingredient, I successfully treated many cases of Rheumatism; but now, at last, I uniformly cure all curable cases of this heretofore much dreaded disease. Those sand-like granular vesicles, found in Rheumatic Blood, seem to dissolve and pass away under the action of this remedy as freely as does sugar when added to pure water. And then, when dissolved, these poisonous wastes freely pass from the system, and the cause of Rheumatism is gone forever. There is now no real need—no actual excuse to suffer long without help. We sell, and in confidence recommend

FIRST DRY SUNDAY.

Even Rear Entrances of Saloons Were Closed.

San Antonio, Oct. 21.—San Antonio people were treated to a genuine surprise Sunday. Although it was raining, it was the first "dry" Sunday, almost, since the establishment of this city by the early Spanish explorers. Following the suit filed Friday for the forfeiture of liquor dealers' bonds for selling whisky on Sunday, that morning every saloon door in the city was closed. There were no back entrances, either.

Many are wondering if the closure will remain permanent and if it will be on during the fair. San Antonio has always been a wide-open city. The outcome is awaited with interest.

DAVIDSON ACCEPTS.

Calls Upon Senator Bailey to Furnish Promised Testimony.

Dallas, Oct. 21.—The following self-explanatory letter has been made public:

Dallas, Tex., Oct. 21.—Hon. J. W. Bailey, Oriental Hotel, City.—Dear Sir: Saturday night a banquet was given by the people of Dallas to the governor of the state, and you and I, among others, were guests.

You volunteered the information that the Standard Oil company was doing business in Texas in violation of the law and that my department should move in the matter. I am grateful for the information, because it adds much to the fund of facts that I have already in hand, and I shall cheerfully use you as a witness against what I regard as the worst enemy to the public weal.

Your known standing in the world of business and politics will of course add much to the weight of your statement, and I, as a public officer, welcome this aid from any citizen. What I most desire is that you place in writing, a detailed statement of the facts in our possession so that I may reframe the pleadings in suit already in preparation in my department. I have your assurance that you have the most unmistakable proof of these violations, and I look to you for valuable and most material aid in bringing this criminal to justice. Kindly address me an early reply to my department. Yours very truly,

R. V. DAVIDSON,
Attorney General of Texas

MADE PERMANENT.

International Printing Pressmen Cannot Inaugurate a Strike.

Cincinnati, Oct. 21.—The temporary injunction against inciting a strike by the International Pressmen's union for an eight hour day was made permanent by United States Judge Thompson, who held that such action on the part of the union officers would be breaking a valid contract.

An injunction was sought by the United Typothetae of America and a certain publishing concern in New York, Chicago, St. Louis and Massachusetts to prevent defendants, officers and members of the Pressmen's union from inciting and carrying on the strike, which in effect, would be breaking a contract entered into last May and running until January 1, 1909. The court held that the demand by the union officers for an eight-hour day prior to the date agreed on was violative of a contract. The judge said the men as individuals could not be enjoined from striking.

RELEASE OF WALLINGS.

Machinery of the American Embassy Has Been Set in Motion.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 21.—The machinery of the American embassy has been set in motion to secure the release of William English Walling of Indianapolis, his wife, Anna, and his sister-in-law, Miss Rose Strunsky, who were arrested at Hotel de France here because of association with members of the Russian Progressive party, four of whom, included the wife of Professor Malmborg of Helsingfors University were taken into custody at the same time.

Bailey a Witness.

Austin, Oct. 21.—It is learned here that Senator Bailey's utterances at the governor's banquet at Dallas, that the Standard Oil company was doing business in Texas, will likely result in the senator being summoned as a witness.

Insurance Is Immense.

DEPART FROM STAMBOUL.

President and Party Say Good-Bye to Many.

Stamboul, La., Oct. 21.—At 10 o'clock Monday President Roosevelt boarded the special train and finally bade adieu to this point, the nearest railroad station to the scene of his recent bear hunting exploits in Louisiana came brakes and to emphasize the closing of the historic incident of a presidential visit the name of the place was changed with the departure of the chief executive and it will be known now as Roosevelt.

All business about plantations and sawmills closed to permit the presence at the station of both employees and as a consequence practically the entire community were on hand to "speed the parting guest." Fully nineteen-twentieths of those present were negroes.

The same train that carried the president away also conveyed the skin of the big bear slain by him last Thursday and the skins of the two smaller animals killed by other members of the party as well. They were presented by the Osborne brothers.

Before the train pulled out the president made a brief speech from the rear platform in which he again expressed his pleasure at having visited the community. He not only expressed his pleasure at being here but said he was especially obliged to the people for letting him alone.

NONNAST NON EST.

Parents Will Search the World For Long-Lost Son.

Chicago, Oct. 21.—Falling after two year's search to find their lost son, Harry, at San Francisco, his supposed destination, Mr. and Mrs. Louis F. Nonnast of 1174 Deming Place will begin at once a worldwide campaign to locate the young man, now twenty-one years of age. In every large city on both continents advertisements will be inserted in the newspapers seeking information of the wanderer. The father is a furniture manufacturer. He does not intend to spare money in the search.

The opening gun in this campaign was fired by an advertisement being inserted in the principal papers on the Pacific coast offering $400 reward for any news of the missing youth.

None of the ordinary motives that induce boys to flee from unhappy homes or the drudgery of toil actuated Harry Nonnast in his flight. His parents were well to do, he was just graduated from the Lake View high school, and seemed to have everything he desired. But his health was not good and he frequently talked of how he might be benefited by the western climate. His father had just about made up his mind to gratify the boy's desire when without warning he disappeared.

As California was his supposed destination the father hurried across the continent, but could get no trace of him in any of the coast towns. When the earthquake claimed its hundreds of victims the alarm of the family was renewed.

No Harry Nonnast was in the list of victims, but the father made another trip to the coast. He found nothing, but after his return came the first scrap of a clue. The Winchester hotel, at which he had made inquiries, reported that after a more thorough search, the name of Harry Nonnast had been found on their register for one night only just before the earthquake. At that time he said he was on his way to a hospital.

EXECUTES HIMSELF.

Condemned Rapist Ties Rope Around Neck and Jumps From Cot.

Charlotte, N. C., Oct. 21.—Tom Upchurch, a negro who was to have been hanged at Lenoir, N. C., Wednesday was found dead in his cell in Franklin county jail Sunday morning by the death watch. Though under close surveillance Upchurch had in some manner unknown to the authorities secured a coil of wire. During the night he fastened one end to a girder of his cell, tied the other around his neck and jumped from his cot. He committed an assault on a sixty-year-old white woman in August last near Lenoir.

Two Bullet Holes in Head.

Montgomery, Oct. 21.—W. H. Bridges, a well known contractor and builder, was found dead, says a special to the Advertiser from Evergreen, in the woods about three miles from that place. Two bullet holes were in his head.

Indigestion

Stomach trouble is but a symptom of, and not in itself a true disease. We think of Dyspepsia, Heartburn, and indigestion as real diseases, yet they are symptoms only of a certain specific Nerve sickness—nothing else.

It was this fact that first correctly led Dr. Shoop to the creation of that now very popular Stomach Remedy—Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Going direct to the stomach nerves, alone brought that success and favor to Dr. Shoop and his Restorative. Without that original and highly vital principle, no such lasting accomplishments were ever to be had. For stomach distress, bloating, biliousness, bad breath and sallow complexion, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—and see for yourself what it can and will do. We sell and cheerfully recommend
